- The Korean language is part of a northern Asian language known as Altaic, which includes Turkish, Mongolian, and Japanese, suggesting early Northern migrations and trade. Korean was also heavily influenced by Chinese, but adopted its own writing system in the 16th century.
- The entire course leads you through the learning process step by step of teaching to help strengthen your memory of the words and sentences you are going to learn. It is designed specifically to make you learn, as opposed to making you do the learning on your own.
